

FY2016 Inter-University Exchange Project Nagoya University

Support for the Formation of Collaborative Programs with Universities in Asia

【Name of project】(Adopted year: FY2016, (Type A —①CAMPUS Asia))

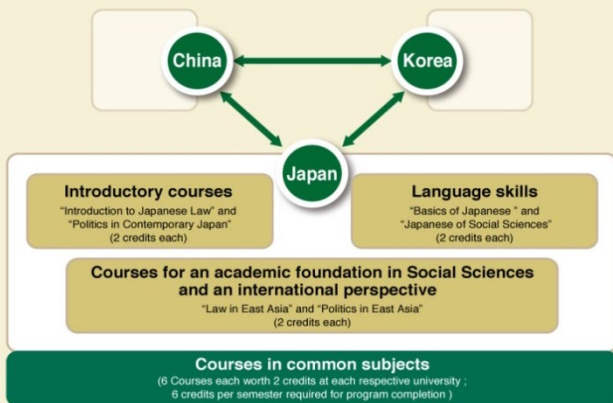

Training human resources for the development of an epistemic community in law and political science to promote the formation of "jus commune (common law)" in East Asia

【Summary of Project】

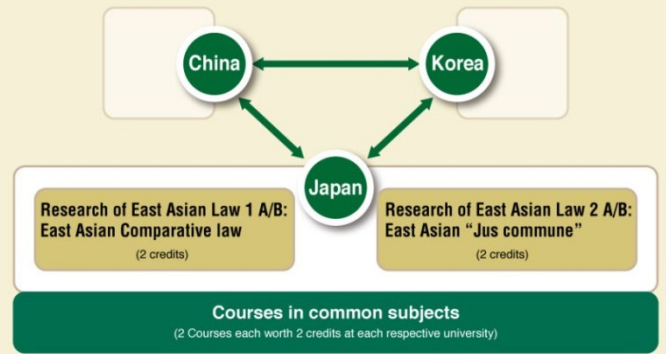

This project is aimed at developing, on the basis of an understanding of the Western "global standards of law," human resources for an epistemic community in law and political science that can take an active role in discussions with a view toward forming a jus commune (common law) in East Asia. Collaborating with partner universities in China and Korea through exchange programs for undergraduate students based on reciprocal conferment of academic credits and research-focused graduate exchange programs, as well as other forms of exchange of quality-assured research and education, the participating universities thus exchange legal information in East Asia, together working toward forming theories on Asian law and assistance for legal infrastructural development, as well as establishing common standards for jurist training and law school education.

Human resource development at Undergraduate level

Human resource development at Graduate level

【Summary of Exchange program】

Nagoya University sends and accepts five students each from China and Korea for one or two semester each academic year. In addition, additional short stay programs are conducted to provide opportunities for various exchange.

【Global Human Resource on the project】

The objective of the project is to develop suitable human resources in order to enable the formation and operation of the East Asian "jus communes" for closer economic, diplomatic and political cooperation in the region.

【Project Features】

What makes this project unique is that universities from Japan, China, and Korea which lead Asia in legal research participated to approach the formation of an East Asia Common Law from the perspectives of both research and educational activities.

Student-Mobility

○ Outbound

In 2016, one student to China and two students to Korea were sent as fifth term students. For the short term program, eight students were sent to China and ten students were sent to Korea including students from Law School and Graduate School of Law.

○ Inbound

In September 2016, four students each from China and Korea were accepted.

■ Forming the University Network with Quality Assurance

○ Dean's Meeting and Quality Assurance Council

The 7th Dean's Meeting was held on March 2017. The 13rd Quality Assurance Council (Beijing) was held in September 2016, the 14th Quality Assurance Council (Seoul) was held in December 2016 and the 15th (Nagoya) was held in March 2017.

○ 4th Student Symposium

The 4th Student Symposium was held in March 2017, with the students who finished their dispatch playing the main role. At this year's Students Symposium, participants discussed how knowledge gained from the long term program has influenced or will influence their career designs, and presented the potential for an East Asia Jus Commune (Common Law), taking into consideration the current status of research in law and political science within our countries of Japan, China, and Korea which is the intended objective of this program.

〈Student Symposium and Career Development Seminar〉

■ Promotion of Student-Mobility Environment

○ Conclusion of Agreement

At the 7th Deans Meeting, the Jus Commune Triangle Agreement for Academic Exchange and Cooperation for the next phase was concluded in consideration of the fact that a sustainable framework of human resource cultivation had been fundamentally established based on this pilot project.

○ Utilizing Students Associations

Students who finished their dispatch are being placed in the center of publicity activities to recruit new students, manage events such as Student Symposiums and language clubs, and create a community for inbound and expected outbound students. Such activities are contributing to helping students feel more comfortable participating in activities.

■ Internationalization of the university Information disclosure and Publication of outcome

○ Students' Future Academic and Career

Among the 6 students who participated in this program and graduated Nagoya University in March 2017, 1 proceeded to Master's program and another preparing for entering Law School. Additionally, 1 joined the Prefectural Government office and 3 obtained employment at leading Japanese corporations that play active roles throughout Asia. From such outcomes, it can be said that the program's intended objective is being steadily and reliably being achieved.

○ Renewal of Campus Asia Pamphlet and Homepage, & Issue of the Alumni Association Newsletter Volume 2

The Campus Asia homepage and pamphlet were renewed with the initiation of the new phase. Also, students took the lead to create the Alumni Association Newsletter utilizing the network of the Alumni Association. The newsletter, which introduced the experiences of current students and alumni who participated in the longer programs as well as providing a peek in to the lives of students currently on dispatch, were distributed to the related parties and served as effective PR material.

〈Alumni Association Newsletter〉

■ Good Practices

○ Career Development Seminar

Lawyers, faculty, and corporate executives who are internationally active within East Asia, as well as students who wish to become globally active, gave presentations and participated in general discussions to help deepen students' understanding of the current affairs of international activities and strengthened the support for student entry into the global community. Many alumni also attended in this seminar and interacted with current students.

The 18th Quality Assurance Council was held in March 2018 at Nagoya. Topics included outcomes, potential improvements, and future directions of the program.

○ 5th Student Symposium

The 5th Student Symposium was held in March 2018 at Nagoya University, with long-term dispatch students playing a central role. Chinese, Japanese, and Korean students who participated in half-year or one-year dispatches gathered in Nagoya to share their experiences with each other and give academic presentations on East Asian Common Law based on the knowledge they acquired during their exchange.

■ Promotion of Student-Mobility Environment

○ International Summer Seminar

From July 31st to August 9th, Nagoya University hosted the International Summer Seminar providing lectures on law and political science, research visits to courts and bar associations, and internship at law offices. 18 students from China and Korea participated in this program, as well as many Japanese students.

○ Utilizing Students Associations

Every year, post-dispatch students take a lead role in creating a community for past, current, and future dispatch students to engage in various activities such as hosting language circles, events such as the Student Symposium, and PR to recruit future participants. Their activities have significantly contributed to creating a relaxed atmosphere which encourages participation from all students.

For the long term program, 5 students to China and 6 students to Korea were sent as 7th term students. Among them, 3 students studied for 1 semester and 8 studied for a year. For the short term program in March, 12 students to China and 7 students to Korea were sent, including 6 students from the Graduate School of Law.

○ Inbound

10 students from China and 5 students from Korea were accepted for the long term program. 5 stayed for a year and 10 stayed for 1 semester. For the short term program, 2 graduate students were accepted for their research in summer and 4 students were accepted in January for the Japan-Korea student exchange.

■ Forming the University Network with Quality Assurance

○ Quality Assurance Council

Quality Assurance Council meetings were held for assurance of the program’s quality. The QA Council discussed policies necessary for realizing the joint implementation of quality-assured education, such as the selection of students to participate in the exchange, educational contents of common courses, performance evaluation, certification of credits, and revisions to guidelines concerning the aforementioned. The council also listened to reports regarding achievements and future concerns, and discussed future policies and directions. The council met 3 times via tele-conferencing due to budget constraints.

○ Double Degree Agreement concluded between Nagoya University and Sungkyunkwan University

Building on the culmination of success and achievements, the NU Graduate School of Law, SKKU Law School and SKKU College of Social Sciences initiated earnest discussions towards the implementation of a double degree program in September of 2017 with the purpose of enhancing the overall quality of the respective university’s education through Internationalization and diversification. After resolving various administrative hurdles such as policy differences, admissions screening, degree evaluations and curriculums, an agreement was executed on January 17, 2019 at NU. It is the hope of all parties involved that this will lead to qualitative and quantitative fertility of global human resources.

■ Promotion of Student-Mobility Environment

○ Utilizing Students Associations

Post-dispatch students took a lead role in helping international students with their moving-in procedures and Japanese conversations as tutors. In addition, they created a community for past, current, and future dispatch students to engage in various activities such as hosting language circles, events, and PR to recruit future participants. Their activities have significantly contributed to creating a relaxed atmosphere which encourages participation from all students.

○ Internship

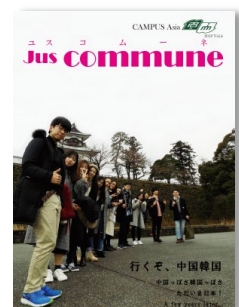

With the cooperation of various corporations and law firms, 5 students dispatched to China and Korea as well as 5 inbound students studying in Japan were able to participate in 2 week internships.

■ Internationalization of the university, Information disclosure and Publication of outcome

○ Issue of the Alumni Association Newsletter Volume 4

Students took the lead to create the Alumni Association Newsletter utilizing the network of the Alumni Association. ■ Exchange Programs

○ Online Study Abroad

In consideration of the uncertainty of when overseas travel to the dispatch university would resume due to the novel coronavirus pandemic, measures were taken to allow Nagoya University courses to be fully attended online. For students who requested to enter Japan, flexibility was exercised such as providing assistance with quarantine facilities and transportation methods, and making it possible to attend classes both online and in-person so as to ensure fairness of educational opportunities during the quarantine period.

○ Alternative measures for the short term program

As it was not possible to conduct short term programs on-site at the host university, special lectures and classes taught by guest speakers specializing in China and Korea invited from both inside and outside of Japan were conducted online.

Student-Mobility

○ Outbound

For the long term program, 1 student was sent to Korea for half a year as 9th term student. Due to the spread of COVID-19, the student took classes online for three months until was able to actually go to Korea. For the alternative measure of the short term program to China and Korea originally scheduled during spring vacation, 3 student each who wished to go to China and Korea participated in the online class and special lectures. In February, two students participated in the online language classes provided by Sungkyunkwan University for approximately 3 weeks.

○ Inbound

1 student from China and 3 students from Korea were accepted for the long term program. 1 student who wished to actually come to Japan arrived late in December due to the influence of COVID-19 situation. However, Nagoya University provided all classes online as well so there will be no disadvantage to the student. The other 3 students chose to take all classes online for their home country.

○ Students' Future Academic and Career

Among the 10 students who participated in this program and graduated Nagoya University in March 2021, 2 became public servant. Others found careers at Law office, broadcast companies, and leading Japanese corporations that play active roles throughout Asia. From such outcomes, it can be said that the program's intended objective is being steadily and reliably being achieved.

○ Conclusion of Agreement

On March 31, an agreement regarding beyond 2021 was concluded between Nagoya University Graduate School of Law, Renmin University of China Law School, Sungkyunkwan University Law School and College of Social Sciences, Shanghai Jiao Tong University KoGuan School of Law, Tsinghua University School of Law, and Seoul University Law School in consideration of the fact that a sustainable framework of human resource cultivation had been fundamentally established based on Mode 1 and Mode 2. Based on this agreement, Nagoya University Law School expects to host 5 students from China and 4 students from Korea in the 2021 Fall semester.
